Pastor's Meditation

My Friend Paul and the Opening and Closing of Doors

Last month marked the fifth anniversary of the death of my friend, Rev. Dr. Paul Holland, Ph.D. People tend to act as if our friends “belong” to us, but with regards to Paul, no one could claim that. I was only one of the hundreds of friends Paul made through 60+ years of ordained ministry in the Presbyterian Church, USA. He made friends with students during 29 years of teaching at Geneva College. He befriended countless clients in private counseling practice. Still, our relationship felt special, unique, and worth celebrating.

In 2012, after a race-related problem in the community, we formed Pastor's Groups. I was blessed enough to get placed with Paul and three others. We met for lunch on the 2nd and 4th Thursdays, almost-always at Paul's church, which was close by. For four years, almost without-fail, we had lunch together twice a month.

Right away, it became obvious that Paul cared about us. The first things he'd say would be, “How is ministry going for you?” or, “What's going on in your life?” Within a few meetings we recognized we were in a “safe container,” a place where anyone could speak freely. I don't remember discussing any rules, but I am confident that nothing said was ever repeated. We referred to the lunches as “free counseling sessions”. Whether it was McDonald's, Wendy's or leftovers from home, they were easily the best meals that month.

Paul was old-school. He learned biblical doctrine in the 1950s and held on until his dying breath. Within that constraint, he had a mind that was willing to go anywhere. He listened to everybody, never rushed to judgment, and always asked questions to help him process what was being said. But he was no “feel-good” counselor; having absorbed the details, he readily offered opinions on the best way to respond to our challenges. And, in most cases, his advice was sound. Advice didn't just flow one-way, either. Sometimes, he actually sought my counsel when making his own decisions. I was honored to be asked.

His testimony was rich. He grew up as a bullied kid in blue collar town near Pittsburgh. After high school he drove truck for years before entering college. From there, he followed God's calling to ministry, seminary, multiple Master's degrees, a D. Min. and a Ph.D. in Psychology, followed by decades of college teaching, counseling and ministry to local churches. One time he told us that at every transition in his life, he could see God opening and closing doors for him, so that, ultimately, there was only one choice to make, which he recognized as God's Will.

The month before he died, I received a phone call from Paul that his health had so deteriorated that he knew he could no longer serve as Pastor. As he saw it, God was shutting another door. As Paul had said, when God shuts a door, another opens, and, thattime, it was a doorway to eternal life. Paul passed away quietly at the age of 87, after a brief illness. I imagine my friend in Eternity, together with the many who called him "friend."

Jesus said, "I no longer call you servants, but friends (John 15:15)." I imagine millions of people gathered around their very best Friend Jesus, expressing thanks to the One who opened and closed all their doors in life. I imagine Paul hearing, "Well done, you good and faithful servant." (Matthew 25:23). What a privilege to know you, Paul! I miss you after all these years, and from our mutual friend Jesus, I draw hope that we will meet again.

Note from the Trustees

Fall is here, time for us to consider gutter cleaning, snow plowing, ice melt purchase and Stewardship.

The roof over Old Fellowship Hall, near the bathrooms area, has had some repair work done which hopefully will stop the leaks that have occurred over the past several years. On close inspection, it was discovered that exposed roofing nails and some shingle installation issues have allowed rain to penetrate the roof, and allowed rain to enter the building. Although we have great roofing material with a long life expectancy, it is only as good as the installation. Hopefully the problems have been resolved.

The east light in the parking lot is not working; the parking lot is illuminated mostly at the west end. The contractor who installed the lights has been contacted. Hopefully it should be repaired soon.

Respectfully,

Don Fox, Fritz May, Jack O'Brien,
Sarah Phillips, David Trump

Missions Report

During September our congregation participated in the ABC International Ministries' World Mission Offering. Our Missions team shared videos and information about the global effort and how people's lives can be greatly improved, even transformed. The theme for 2021 has been, "We've been surprised by God's glory" John 1:16. Thank you for your donations to this annual ABC special offering.

RING IN THE HOLIDAYS 2021!
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 10 A.M. -
NOON in the church parking lot

The Missions team is planning our 2021 Drive-thru collection of food and gifts for the holiday season. To help the Penfield Ecumenical Food Shelf with their distribution of Thanksgiving dinners for families in need, we asked them for suggestions and received the following wish list:

Canned corn, cranberry sauce, boxes of turkey stuffing, turkey gravy packets, boxes of brownie mix.

The Missions Team will also be authorizing $500 from our budget to further help support the PEFS with this holiday effort.

Also, as we have done in the past, we would like to help with Christmas Cheer at the Coldwater Road House for Women and Children. Please consider bringing in pajamas for the women. There is a need for sizes from Small/Medium - XXL. Nothing has to be wrapped.

We hope to see you there!

Meet Our New Choral Scholars

Caroline Duers - soprano

Caroline Duers is a second-year soprano pursuing a BM at the Eastman School of music, studying with Dr. Jonathan Retzlaff. Originally from Storrs, Connecticut, Caroline was raised on a foundation of church hymns and school choral activities. She has trained classically for 7 years thus far and has competed and placed nationally as a soloist as well as an ensemble member in various organizations (NAFME, ACDA, Schmidt, WNO, etc.) She has worked professionally with the Cathedral Schola Cantorum at St. Joseph's Cathedral in Hartford, CT. Caroline participates in the Eastman Collegium, an early music ensemble, and will be performing in Winter of 2022 in the school's production of La Calisto. She is thrilled to be working with the First Baptist Church of Penfield's choir and is delighted to meet the congregation.

Samantha Sosa – alto

Samantha Sosa is a Venezuelan soprano and third-year undergraduate student at the Eastman School of Music. She studies with Professor Katherine Ciesinski and is pursuing her BM in Vocal Performance. She has been a finalist in two international competitions this past year. The Classical Singer International Vocal Competition as a musical theater finalist and the Opera Viva competition. She performs early music with the Eastman Collegium and freelances as a jazz vocalist. You can see her perform next in Eastman Opera Theatre's fall double bill as the Little Daughter in the opera Proving Up on November 4th and 6th. She is honored to be able to sing at the First Baptist Church of Penfield every week and is excited to meet everyone.

David Griffith – tenor

David Griffith is a second-year tenor at the Eastman School of Music from Syracuse, NY. He has sung in church choir since age 6, and also enjoyed performing in theater since he was young as well. David studies with Professor Robert Swensen at Eastman and is very eager to continue to pursue music in the future. Aside from music, David enjoys golf, movies and nature. He is so happy to meet everyone at the First Baptist Church of Penfield, and is excited to sing with the choir.

Jason Rober – bass

Jason is a new graduate student at the Eastman School of Music, originally coming from New Paltz, New York. He first studied Music Education at SUNY Fredonia, before deciding to study voice here in Rochester, with Professor Jan Opalach. Jason loves the choral repertoire, and is exceedingly content when singing church music. Aside from the realm of music, he adores hiking, whether it be in his hometown, or wherever else he can find a hill. Jason also takes pride in his vegetarian cooking, and loves to offer his friends a luscious chili or a zesty quesadilla. He is very much looking forward to becoming acquainted with the congregation in Penfield.

A Message from the Moderator

Greetings Church Family and Friends,

As I prepare this message, I would like you to know that today is Sunday September 19th, and as most of you are aware, our choir returned to our sanctuary this morning for the first time since the start of Covid. Hallelujah! I'm sure that those who attended, whether online or in the sanctuary would agree that it was a joyous occasion. We are so grateful to have Naomi, the choral scholars, and all of the members of our choir return, and a great big welcome to the new members as well! We thank each one of them for sharing the wonderful gift of music. We can all look forward to what they bring to our Sunday worship as we head into the upcoming holiday season.

Now that our Sunday worship services are starting to work their way to get closer to normal, so are some of the programs and activities that we offer. We have started up a modified time of Coffee and Fellowship, followed by Adult Discussion. A Sunday School program is in the works and will begin very soon as well. Team meetings are taking place and planning is in the works to get everything up and running again in a safe and modified way.

With that being said, I will be making an effort to connect with teams and their members to review team responsibilities together, and assist in resolving any areas where help may be needed. As always, I look forward to working with everyone.

Let us truly love one another and work together to Glorify God in all that we do!

Be Blessed!
